“You can say it all began with Richard Powers,” says Marilyn Chartrand, one of the original collaborators on these dances. Jim’s love affair with ragtime dance began in 1980, when he attended American Dance Week in Mendocino, California. Social dance historian and teacher, Richard Powers taught. “It was absolutely mindblowingly fantastic!” says Jim.

On Jim’s first day in Colorado, in 1988, Marilyn invited him to teach ragtime dances with her at a Narodno Ensemble rehearsal, in anticipation of the group adding a ragtime suite to their repertoire. In 1989, the group performed at the Columbine Ball and Tango Trots Jim started at Denver’s Temple Events Center.

The tea dances were an outgrowth of Jim’s interest in ragtime era dances – over the years he has taught one-step, foxtrot, tango, waltz, and maxixe, among others. He has also hosted “Turkey Trots,” on Thanksgiving Thursday. Susan Marie Frontczak recalls planning a surprise dance for Jim on a Sunday afternoon with Rodney Sauer: “Rodney said ‘This works. This is a time people can come.’” So they decided to try it once a month. The initial collaboration involved not only Jim and Marilyn, but additionally Rodney Sauer for music, and edibles by Lavinia Ycas, and was organized under the umbrella of C FOOTMAD.

In the first year, 1990, a small group attended the dances at Denver’s Washington Park Community Center. They later moved to Temple Events Ballroom, and then to Boulder’s Avalon in 2006.

Scores of enthusiasts have donated time and talents. Diane Leonard, who served as volunteer coordinator, says “It takes a lot of people and a lot of volunteers – door, kitchen, set-up, take-down. At one time I had about 50 people I called.” Over the years, Lavinia and Marilyn baked hundreds of dozens of cookies. Several people joked that the dancing was nice, but they came for the chocolate mint squares. More recently, a long line of gifted cooks have contributed tasty delicacies.

Six musical groups have played for the dances, but Mont Alto and Susan Rogers have been the anchors through the years. Rodney notes the repertoire has grown hugely, to more than 600 tunes, with notable favorites such as “Padam Padam.” “Now we’ve bled into the 1930s, 40s and 50s. The big reason is because of Susan Rogers ... She’s such a good singer of serious songs – ballads, swing, blues,” notes Rodney. “It’s one of my most favorite things, to come and sing and dance. It’s the highlight of my month!” says Susan. She sings tangos in several languages (coming soon, a Polish rendition!), and she loves the “silly foxtrots” in the Helen Kane, Betty Boop style of the 1920s, songs such as “Don’t Be Like That” and “I Wanna Be Loved by You.” Susan’s Exuberant Quartet plays several times a season to rave reviews. Her repertoire includes new songs in old styles.

Not only have scores of dancers enjoyed themselves at these Sunday afternoon events, but couples have met there and married. Marilyn has become a specialist in baking tea goodies.

Rodney’s career in silent film music grew from research into tea dance tunes. Watch Your Step! Vintage Dance Vignettes organized a group of individuals who love these historic dances and perform them. And so, the 20-year tea dance tradition has added a unique and enjoyable texture to the fabric of the greater Denver/Boulder area dance community. May they long continue. Thank you, Jim!

Tea Dance Celebrates Twenty Years!

OPENING TEA DANCE

September 11 • 11 am

Join us to kick-off our 20th anniversary with a potluck garden party!

*E*nvision a more genteel past. A five-piece orchestra graces the stage, nicely dressed dancers glide the floor, tasty refreshments and flowers beckon from a nearby table. What a sweet way to spend a Sunday afternoon! As Mont Alto Orchestra plays, the dancers swoon to the luscious vocals of belle chanteuse, Susan Rogers, as she sings, “You Go to My Head.” For 20 years, Jim X. Borzym has offered these Sunday afternoon tea dances, featuring authentically styled live music that spans from the ragtime era to tunes recently composed. The Front Range community has been fortunate to enjoy such vintage dances and music, mostly – and indeed rarely -- found only on the east and west coasts.

Pivots are also useful in waltz and other couple dances. In the following weeks we will add schottis, basic Swedish polska, stigvals, hambo and Rørospols. Weekly classes will build on each other, so it is important to come regularly.

Held at the Pearl Street Studio, Teaching 7:30-8:30, followed by open dancing. We usually have live music, on fiddle, nyckelharpa & button accordion. No partner necessary.
